THREE NOTABLE NOVELS

DAVID BRAN

By MORLEY ROBERTS

Author of "Rachel Marr," "The Idlers," etc. With frontispiece in color by Frank T. Merrill. $1.50

Similar in theme to Mr. Roberts' "Rachel Marr," which took the literary world by storm five years ago.

"David Bran" bespeaks the hand of a master fictionist. . . . For strong situations, for unusual portrayal of characters, and for beauty of writing, 'David Bran' has few equals today."

—Cleveland Town Topics.

"Its heroes and heroines are intensely human. The book has a great beauty, a strange wild beauty."—N. Y. Times Saturday Review.

A GENTLEMAN OF QUALITY

By Frederic van Rensselaer Dey

Author of "The Magic Story," etc. Illustrated. $1.50

A thrilling tale of mistaken identity.

"I read 'A GENTLEMAN OF QUALITY' last night, and it is a 'corking' good mystery story—better in my opinion than 'The Masquerader.' I believe we have the best mystery story of the year, and we should lose no opportunity to advise people of the fact."—From a letter received from one of our travellers.

"THE IRRESISTIBLE"

ANNE OF GREEN GABLES

By L. M. MONTGOMERY. Illustrated. $1.50

An English opinion of the book:

"At long intervals there is sent across the Atlantic a book which lives in the public memory for years. Such were 'Helen's Babies' and 'Little Lord Fauntleroy,' and 'Anne of Green Gables' deserves to make an equal sensation."—The Nottingham Guardian.

BILL TRUETELL

GEORGE A. BRENNAN'S kindly, true, and humorous tale of theatrical life is meeting with a cordial reception from the critics. John Vance Cheney, in a signed review, says:

"George H. Brennan has served a good feast of footlight fun in his story of the old-time manager, 'Bill Truetell.'

"Those familiar with stage experiences in what is now spoken of as the 'old time' will have many a hearty laugh over the faithful reproductions on these merry and very human pages, while the uninitiated will catch the jolliest of peeps into a new life, nothing if not chanceful, calculated to bring out all those latent energies of mind and character which the ordinary sort of existence leaves to uninterrupted obscurity.

"All those traits usually lumped together in the term 'human' appear conspicuously in Mr. Brennan's book.

"Courageous, sympathetic, generous Bill Truetell can say and do much as he pleases and we will not only forgive him, but often applaud him.

"He is the hero of many battles; he is a tried strategist, whose pluck and wit never forsake him; and while he is developing to us his own character he is unconsciously displaying a deal of human nature at large. The material is first-hand and the presentation of it springs from intimate knowledge."

ARTHUR TRAIN'S New Book

THE BUTLER'S STORY

Illustrated. - $1.25

¶ The highly amusing and original story of the life of a New York family of the nouveau riche type, from the point of view of an English butler. The butler, Peter Ridges, gives in a rarely entertaining way, the philosophy of life as it is understood below stairs, pen portraits of his fellow-servants and of the various members of the Carter family, descriptions of their social adventures and of his own excursion into Wall Street speculation, and an account of the panic and of its effects upon the fortunes of the Carter family. Told in a lively and picturesque narrative, the cleverest social satire of recent years.

THE KING OF ARCADIA

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Illus. $1.50

¶ The young engineer who came West to an out-of-the-way valley to take charge of an irrigation dam found that the work would result in flooding of Castle 'Cadia, a ranch which had been made into a paradise of the desert. The fight with the King of Arcadia, the adventures of the daughter of the king, the investigation of the dramatist, and the welcome of it all make a story living, intense, full of excitement, and of adventures as real and credible as thrilling.

The GLORY

OF THE

CONQUERED*THE STORY OF A GREAT LOVEby* SUSAN GLASPELL

This is the story of a great love—the love that changes the face of the world, overrides the impossible, and lifts defeat into wonderful victory.

The setting is twentieth-century Chicago, the lovers are a prominent scientist and his artist wife, and yet their noble passion is comparable only with the undying romances of history. American in its cleanness and vigor, this novel breathes the spirit of the great emotions which know neither time nor boundary.

NOTES IN SEASON.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have published the first novel written by Ellery H. Clark, who has already made himself a name as the champion all-around athlete of America. His hero is a man of massive strength and great energy and he calls the story of his hero's adventures "Loaded Dice." The characters are not noble and they stop at nothing to gain their ends. A decidedly realistic and sensational contribution to fiction.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready a novel by George Sandeman, entitled "Uncle Gregory." Its plot is the difficulties incurred in carrying out "a preposterous will" which is left by an immensely wealthy banker, who is described as a decidedly recognizable modern type, a man who is "obstinately philanthropic on the grand scale." They also have just ready John Galsworthy's new novel, "Fraternity."

L. C. PAGE & Co. will bring out on March 20 a new story by Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey, author of "The Magic Story," etc., entitled "A Gentleman of Quality," which is described as a "thrilling story of mistaken identity." They have just put L. M. Montgomery's capital story, "Anne of Green Gables" to press for the ninth time. Three editions of this story have been called for in England since the first of the year.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have just issued "Bill Truettell," a story of the theatrical life of which an old-time manager is the hero. They will shortly bring out "The Delafield Affair," by Florence Finch Kelly, whose "With Hoops of Steel" met with so much appreciation. It is a story of the West, full of adventure. After being a fugitive from justice, hunted as an absconding defaulter, hiding in Canada and elsewhere the hero is discovered as bank president in New Mexico. The exciting events and dramatic climax insure popularity.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on March 13 Arthur Train's new book, "The Butler's Story," in which Peter Ridges, butler in a newly-rich family, relates the adventures, social, financial and sentimental, that came under his notice. The keen fun, the exciting incidents and the delightful amusing satire make an inimitable book. They will publish at the same time a new volume in the International Theological Library on "The Christian Doctrine of God," by W. N. Clarke, D.D., Professor of Theology at Colgate University, who shows the view of God for which Christianity stands responsible, the doctrines grounded in Christian revelation, developed in history and then restated once more in the presence of modern knowledge.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish late this month, "The Little Gods," a story of Philippine life, by Rowland Thomas, who leaped into sudden fame with the winning of the Collier $5000 prize. Mr. Thomas is living on his farm in Duxbury, to keep which going he laughingly says, he is obliged to write stories. Mr. Thomas was born in Castine, Me., in 1879, and was graduated from Harvard (Summa cum laude) in 1901. Immediately afterwards he went to the Philippines. Two years of keen observation and careful study of conditions in the Islands gave him the material he was seeking, and he came home to put his knowledge into interesting form for story readers. The Youth's Companion was the first magazine to publish his tales. Then his striking story, "Fagan," won the Collier contest in 1905, and he became at once a prominent person in literary ranks.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

 The prices of net books issued by publishers who protect the prices of their new publications are preceded in this list by the double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. Works of fiction (not net) of which a minimum price is protected by their publishers, are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not protected are preceded by a single asterisk *, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory, c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

tions and other useful information, with extended exercises. N. Y., Isaac Pitman & Son, [1909.] c. '08. 192 p. D. cl., *75 c. net.

The work was written from a practical, rather than from a theoretical viewpoint, and all the exercises have been given repeatedly to the author's classes during the past eight or ten years.

Bashford, H. H. The pilgrim's march. N. Y., Henry Holt & Co., 1909. c. 320 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A simple narrative of the experience of a family left penniless through the death of the father, an English army officer. The fortune of Robin, one of the older boys, is principally followed, who, though possessing artistic tendencies, is forced to accept a clerkship with a relative in London in the tea business. This relative and his family are very Puritanical, and for a while convert Robin to their way of thinking, inducing him to give up all the pleasant things in life. The young man soon swings to the other extreme, studies art, frequents bohemian society, becomes infatuated with an actress, etc. A good mother's love is his salvation.

Bazin, René. "This, my son," (Les Noëlets;) tr. by Dr. A. S. Rappoport. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. '08. 307 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

Julien Noëlet is a rich Breton farmer possessing a large estate, which he delights in developing. His children are destined to follow in his footsteps, but his eldest son has aspirations beyond farming. His father allows him to study and go to college when he announces his intention of being a priest. He falls in love with a girl above him in social position, gives up the idea of being a priest and goes to Paris, hoping to become a man of letters. His story is a tragedy, realistically told. The book gives an unusually, vivid picture of French farm life and the customs of the Breton peasant.

Benedict, Clare. A resemblance, and other stories. N. Y., Putnam, 1909. c. 5+378 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Contents: A resemblance; An adventure at Lismore End; His comrade; Brand's guardians; An interchange of courtesies; The eternal masculine; Love in the mist; The end of "Donnelly"; Roderick Eaton's children; A portrait of Collyer.

Benson, Father Rob. Hugh. The conventionalists. St. Louis, B. Herder, 1908, [1909.] c. 367 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The hero of this story is Algy Bannister, the second son of an old and respectable house, wherein conventionality has attained in the course of time to the very proportions of a religion. Father Benson introduces himself by name, telling how he met Algy, how the young man found congenial company with certain Catholic priests and how they aided him in solving the difficulties that were trying his soul. The young man finally enters the Catholic church and in time becomes a monk.

Donovan is the "grand old man" of boxing in this country, former middle weight champion of the United States, and for many years instructor in boxing and general sporting mentor of the New York Athletic Club. Both as an old personal friend and as "boxer by appointment" to the President, he has collected a fund of anecdotes which portray a new and very human side of Roosevelt the man. There are sketches also of John L. Sullivan, Corbett and other famous boxers.

A picture of life, manners, education, morals and religion in the intensely interesting period of the later Roman republic, by the author of "Roman festivals of the period of the republic," "The city-state of the Greeks and the Romans." The age of Cicero was a critical moment in the history not only of Rome but of the world. The great political question of the time is this: Was the Roman republican constitution capable of governing the Empire—of holding it together, and developing it on sound and just principles? Scholars are beginning to feel that if they are to understand rightly either the problem or its solution they must examine more carefully the living fibre and tissue of society in this age.

Hale, Mrs. Louise Clesser. The actress: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1909. c. '08. 328 p. pls. D. cl., *$1.50.

The story is told by the actress herself—a New York girl who first gives up her sweetheart for the stage. The fun and the tears of stage life are described in a frank, humorous way. The man is a prosperous, level-headed business man who believes he knows just what the feminine "artistic temperament" really needs—common sense and protection. Naturally he hasn't much sympathy with the "career." However in the end she gives up the stage for her lover.

Roscoe James Ham is professor of romance languages at Trinity College and formerly professor of modern languages at Bowdoin College; Arthur Newton Leonard is professor of German at Bates College. Intended to meet the practice of those teachers who believe that a thorough grounding of the essentials of German grammar is the best preparation for reading and speaking German. The book is so planned that it can be completed by the end of the first half of a school year, and a pupil who has carefully worked out each lesson will have at his command clear ideas regarding the main facts of the language and will be well equipped to take up the annotated texts commonly used in first and second year work.

J. Henry Lee is an American genealogist of note; J. R. Hutchinson is an English worker in same field. They have collaborated on this work for several years. By a find in the records of the English Chancery Court they have traced the ancestry of Lincoln 400 years further back than had as yet been done and have also gleaned many important facts about his ancestors in America. The book presents sound genealogical research and gives elaborate tables and copious appendices of hitherto unpublished documents, court records, wills, etc., offering a mine of historic lore. The analysis of Lincoln's inherited traits is specially notable. The volume is richly illustrated with views and old prints of scenes and buildings connected with the Lincoln family in England and this country, with facsimiles of documents, seals, autographs, etc.

Lee, Jennette, [Mrs. Gerald Stanley Lee, formerly Jennette Barbour Perry,] Simeon Tetlow's shadow. N. Y., Century Co., 1909. c. 316 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

Simeon Tetlow is the overworked, brilliant president of the "R. & Q." railroad and much of the story passes in his private office. John Bennett, a quiet young assistant, has become his "shadow," always at his beck and call and truly fond of him. A great corporation is vividly described. Tetlow's health breaks down and he is at last persuaded to try rest. His "shadow" runs the business and the directors are more than satisfied until his recovery. The "shadow's" devotion to an invalid mother shows his loving, unselfish character.

Begins with La Salle's romantic experiences down unexplored streams and through virgin forests in the land that became Indiana, with special descriptions of the Indian inhabitants. Then comes the history of the English and French colonial times, followed by the hardy life of the pioneers from the Eastern States. Indiana's part in the Civil War is given with spirit, and Morgan's Raid is specially described. The very rapid progress of the state after the War is given in detail.

A gold mine in a desolate region west of the Rockies is known to have lost both its owners when it had only begun to be worked. Its exact locality is unknown, but it is reported to be very valuable. All the idle prospectors of Baker City go in search of it. One of the chief searchers is a white man whose identity is hid under the sobriquet of "Apache Kid"—he is a dashing highwayman, represented as the owner of many virtues. With him goes Francis, the young man who tells the story, an honest fellow whom "Apache Kid" seems to have magnetized. The narrative is a succession of bloody fights and murders as the searchers meet. "Apache Kid" and his companion, the only survivors, finally reach the mine and find it worthless.

Mr. Thompson gives a comprehensive account of the existing relations of the working classes and the different religious organizations. His exposition of present conditions is supplemented by a searching inquiry into other causes, and though he writes from the point of view of a churchman, his fairness and sympathy with the wage earners and his comprehension of their attitude cannot be gainsaid. The book consists of four parts: 1, The alienation of wage earners from the churches, its extent and causes; 2, The attitude of the churches to the workmen and its results; 3, Christianity and socialism; 4, The remedy for the evils of the situation. Trevena, J: Arminel of the West. N. Y., Moffat, Yard & Co., 1909. 351 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A story of Devonshire by the author of "Furze the Cruel." The characters are odd village folk, with a sprinkling of grandees. Arminel, whose other name is Maria and whose patronymic is Zaple, is the daughter of an oil man who lives up on the moor. Into her heart had been born the instinct to rise in the world, and rise she did—and just how it takes many pages to tell. In spite of her ambition she is honest of heart and clean and sweet of soul.

A wife of fifteen years, always the centre of a happy home, is all at once, by trifling things, led to suspect her husband of unfaithfulness. Her journal is her only confidant, and here she enters day by day her unhappy story. It is all painfully real—the brief separation, the tragedy of the "other woman" and the commonplace adjustment again of their daily lives.

Present paper the result of a study of the known San Pablo outcrops of middle California and of their fauna. An attempt was made to set forth the main characteristics of the formation from base to top, and the variations in the character of the strata at the same horizon in different localities within the area were studied. The formation is a distinct feature of the Tertiary of middle California. Seventy-three species of fauna were studied.

This adventurous romance of Ireland in 1780 is the last story the author of "A gentleman of France" says he will write. The time is when Ireland was in chains to England. A gentleman adventurer apparently, but really the scion of an ancient Irish family, returns from Sweden to look after the interests of his ward, who is filled with the most ardent devotion for the cause of her country, lands on the wild west coast of Ireland and finds himself among a half-savage, bitterly revengeful people, mostly smugglers, who call themselves "The Wild Geese." They are dominated by his ward, a beautiful Irish girl. The man has many problems to solve, all of which he does successfully, even winning the girl's love and trust.

THE DISORGANIZATION OF THE BOOKTRADE.

WE reprint elsewhere extracts from an article on "The Disorganization of the Booktrade," contributed by Dr. Hugo Münsterberg to the current issue of The Atlantic Monthly, which will at least interest the American booktrade if it will not convince them of the soundness of the versatile doctor's point of view. Dr. Münsterberg, naturally enough, regards the situation from the standpoint of an outsider, as a dilettanti, rather than from the inside, as one taught by experience and through contact with every difficulty which this complex subject presents; so that, while the doctor recognizes keenly enough the results, the symptoms, he is somewhat in the dark as to the causes and not altogether happy—at least so it will strike the bookseller—in the remedies he suggests.

Judging from the many complaints in the Börsenblatt, the Allgemeine Buchhändler-Zeitung and other periodicals more or less closely allied to the German booktrade of the abuses practiced by both publisher and bookseller, and of the conflicts with the undersellers, the conditions in the German booktrade are not so altruistic as they appear to the casual observer. And the reports from England, France and other countries would lead us to believe that the booktrade in the United States is not alone in its suffering from "disorganization." The reasons for the passing of the bookseller are many and the seed of the disease was laid many decades ago; the remedies suggested also are many, but not one of them will succeed until the way is found to make the profession of book-selling remunerative enough to attract able young men willing to undergo the necessary study and preparation to fit themselves for positions in our profession. And this is as true of every other country in which bookelling has fallen into desuetude as it is in this country.

IN view of the importance of the subject we give more than usual prominence to the following communication from one of the ablest booksellers in this country:

BOOKTRADE CONDITIONS IN GERMANY AND AMERICA.

IT is to be hoped that every American publisher and bookseller will read Professor Hugo Münsterberg's paper on "The Disorganization of the Book Trade," in this month's Atlantic. The writer's standpoint is frankly that of "an observer of American social traits." He believes that present conditions in the American booktrade, if allowed to continue, will effect a serious injury to the national mind; and it is this aspect, rather than the commercial bearings of the problem, that chiefly interests him. But, instead of detracting from its value to the practical reader, it is precisely this broad and disinterested standpoint that gives the article its chief value. Questions of reform in the booktrade are far too often argued from the narrow standpoint of personal interest—whether of publisher or bookseller or author.

On the European trip from which he recently returned, Professor Münsterberg was strongly impressed with a number of things—principally the happy state of the German booktrade as compared with our own.

"In Europe the bookstores are the centre of the reading community, and their number increases steadily—America's bookstores are dying out, and their influence is insignificant; outside of the largest cities you seek them almost in vain. If I go in Germany, for instance, to a town of a hundred thousand inhabitants, I find from a dozen to a score of attractive, well-supplied bookstores. A rich assortment of books from all fields—new and older books, literary and scholarly books, popular editions and costly works—is easily accessible to the customer, and by the splendid organization of the trade, every book that is not at hand can be supplied from the central reservoirs in a day. . . . They [American writers] may well envy the German author whose books are supplied on request to every bookstore in the country free of charge for a year's display. . . ."

"In Germany all publishers form one association, no member of which has a right to sell directly to the customer; every copy, therefore, goes through the bookseller. Yet that alone, if adopted here, would not secure any great advantage, for it would be very doubtful whether a small town could have its decent bookstore, as the large stores in the big cities would evidently be able to give a high discount, and would thus secure the whole trade by mail orders. The bookshop in the small place would then be lost. The really decisive point is, therefore, that no member of the publishers' association should have a right to give books to a bookstore that sells below the regular retail price. The customer in a little country town in Germany can thus get his book from Berlin or Leipzig only at the same price at which the store in the neighboring street supplies it, and his neighbor can give him the further advantage of a convenient display. He trades, therefore, in his own town; and in this way even the smallest place can provide business for a solid bookstore which is a centre of literary interest."

Professor Münsterberg is aware that such a price agreement as now exists in Germany would in this country involve a "restraint of trade," and so become at once ineffectual. He believes that the solution of the problem lies in "a combination without monopoly," by means of which "the publishers themselves could unite their energies, and together create bookstores in which all products of their publishing should be on continuous display."

To any one acquainted with trade conditions in this country such a solution must seem no less impractical than illogical. It is, as I see it, precisely because the German publishers stick to their publishing, and refuse to compete with the retail dealer, (either by establishing retail stores of their own or by supplying their publications direct to the retail customer,) that the German booktrade is in so satisfactory a condition. What is wanted in this country is not more competition from publishers in the retail trade, but less; next to price-cutting, perhaps the greatest discouragement to the bookseller lies in the systematic, and largely successful, efforts of nearly all publishers to secure direct retail orders. The true function of the publisher is that of a wholesaler; and until the American publisher adopts the position of his German colleague, and refuses to sell directly to the customer, he can never hope for healthy conditions in the booktrade.

Admitting that the German plan for preventing price-cutting is not feasible in this country, I submit that there is but one other solution of the problem. This solution lies in the maintaining of prices by contract. Such a plan seems to me unassailable legally, and has indeed already been successfully adopted in a number of special cases. A recent example is that of the new one-volume Bible dictionary, published by Charles Scribner's Sons. The retail bookseller can secure this work only by signing an agreement to maintain the fixed published price of $5, and hundreds of copies have been sold on this basis. A plan that is successful with one book may be successful with all books. Let us suppose that the bookseller, instead of signing an agreement to maintain the published price on Hastings's Bible dictionary only, should agree to maintain the fixed price on all of the Scribner publications. And suppose also that, if he did not sign such an agreement, he could secure these publications only at such a discount as would make price-cutting impossible. Can it be doubted for a moment that any reputable bookseller would refuse to enter into such an agreement—granting, of course, that he could be certain the publishers would honorably maintain their obligations in the matter?

Here is no "restraint of trade," but only a simple matter of special terms under private contract. Here is no new and untried idea, but one that has long been in successful operation in special cases. The matter of jobbers of course introduces something of a difficulty into such a plan; but it is a difficulty that is far from insuperable.

It will probably be long before the American booktrade reaches that Utopian state which, according to Professor Münsterberg's picture, now exists in Germany. But conditions can be bettered, and must be. If publishers and booksellers will but unite in earnest and unselfish determination to advance one common cause—the rehabilitation of the American booktrade—there is hope that we may yet be able to hold up our heads in comparison with our brothers of the Fatherland.

— W. R. BROWNE.

AFTER three years' labor the copyright bill, much to the surprise of all interested, was rushed through the last sessions of Congress late in the evening of March 3. Owing to the severe storm that practically isolated the Capital on March 4 and 5 by disabling the telegraph and telephone lines and blocking railway communications between Washington and Philadelphia, we are unable at the time we must go to press to ascertain whether the bill was signed by President Roosevelt before he went out of office, nor could we obtain a copy of the text of the bill as finally acted upon to be able to give a synopsis of the variations from the law of 1901. We must therefore defer to another issue a consideration of the whole matter.

THE DISORGANIZATION OF THE BOOKTRADE

HUGO MUNSTERBERG IN THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY FOR MARCH.

... THE American book is practically unknown on the European Continent. I went to the special bookstores of foreign literature; they had a hundred excuses in store, but never the books I wanted. I made my pilgrimage to the large libraries, and could not find such American books as no village library in America would wish to be without. I went to scholarly congresses and talked there with hard-reading men of all nations, and they spoke of the writings of American scholars as of the Rocky Mountains, which they certainly accept as existing, and which may be splendid and wonderful, but which they have never had a chance to see in the original. And on expressing my astonishment, I usually received the reply that it is too bothersome to get American books, as the booktrade of the United States seems without order and system; nobody knows where to find what is wanted. I saw it with my own eyes. An important book by a Columbia professor had appeared in New York in March; in the following August, a German bookstore wrote to the English representative of the American house, and ordered the book for a customer. I saw the reply card which laconically announced from London that the book had not yet appeared in print. . . .

It is easy to make light of this failure of the American book abroad; what does it amount to—we are asked—if our latest novel is sold at home in hundreds of thousands, and if our magazines reach every village of America? But even if the dollars and cents in the case may be a trifling matter, there is a more important issue involved. The world-influence of the American mind must suffer if the chief messengers of American thought, the books, are hampered on their way, and if the American scholar and poet and essayist and author cannot be heard in every land. The mist of prejudices against the crudeness and materialism of the New World is still thick and heavy; how can it be dispelled, if those who interpret American ideals and express American endeavors are kept in silence outside of the home boundaries? In our times, when the civilized world has become one, and every newspaper of Europe has its long cables about the most trivial American events, it is a wrong to the world-influence of American culture if our writers are banished from the European Continent by our own carelessness.

Of course, it would seem that good translations might overcome the evil, but . . . the great tendencies of modern American writing do not show at all in the chance translations of the day. It must not be forgotten that the just anger of the European publisher plays an important rôle in this, and erects a barrier against many an American author. The European publisher sees his works practically unprotected against American pirates. He is not aware that American authors and publishers would greatly welcome acceptance by the United States of the international copyright laws of Europe, and that it is the typographical unions which are the centre of opposition. He knows only that his novels are reprinted in German-American papers, and that his text-books are published in American translations without any profit to him, and he takes his vengeance by refusing to print anything American. . . .

And yet the gloomy view of our American booktrade which I brought back from my European travels has, after all, a much more serious meaning. The failure abroad may not count for much, but the impressions in Europe brought more clearly to my mind than before that the American book to a high degree is not less a failure in our own country; here, too, it does not really reach the readers. Of course, the American buys many books, and pushes the latest novel to its third hundred thousand, but no one who watches the selection closely can doubt that haphazard methods determine the demand and supply, and that superficiality and aimlessness prevail; and the guilt for all of it lies in the disorganization of the booktrade. A change somewhat after the European example is needed, and such a change would be not simply a commercial problem, but truly a social reform. That is the reason, and the only reason, why an observer of American social traits asks for a hearing; a serious injury to the people's mind is imminent—that it is an injury also to the publishers' pocket is secondary.

The well-adapted book at home is, after all, the strongest agency for national culture. It is the only reliable remedy for the saloon and its miseries, and it is the only antidote to the benumbing chase for mere wealth and its pseudo pleasures and excitements. The newspaper with its sensationalism cannot stem the longings of the mind, and the chances are great that those who are not in the habit of reading good books will benefit little even from the rich treasures that the magazines put before them. . . . Of course, we are near the truth in blaming for all this the hurry of our up-to-date life. But . . . is the book defeated only because the rush of superficial life has become so wild, or has not perhaps the rush become so passionate . . . because the book was too weak, and did not force itself sufficiently into the foreground?

I point at once to the core of the trouble: in Europe the bookstores are the centre of the reading community, and their number increases steadily—America's bookstores are dying out, and their influence is insignificant; outside of the largest cities you seek them almost in vain. If I go in Germany, for instance, to a town of a hundred thousand inhabitants, I find from a dozen to a score of attractive well-supplied bookstores. A rich assortment of books from all fields—new and older books, literary and scholarly books, popular editions and costly works—is easily accessible to the customer, and by the splendid organization of the trade, every book that is not at hand can be supplied from the central reservoirs in a day. Each store has its ample display in the windows, constantly changing; each one gladly sends to its customers for inspection all the new books which might have for him special interest. The books there come to you and attract you and tempt you and take hold on you.

The average American town of a hundred thousand inhabitants may have a dozen jewelry stores, but not a single true bookstore. . . . The books are sold either in the small stationer's, with ink and leather goods, if not with candy, or in the huge department store, between bathing-suits and trunks. In the one case, there is no backing of capital; all is done with the narrowest means. In the other case, there is no profit, as the books are on the whole added to attract the people who might happen to buy an umbrella and shirt-waist after being drawn into the big place where the latest novel is given away below the publishers' wholesale price. In both cases there is nothing at hand which has not the probability of pretty immediate sale, and in both cases all real interest in literature is absent; an adjustment to the subtler needs of the community is thus impossible.

You might reply: That does not matter, as we Americans order our books directly from the publisher, which saves us the profit of the middleman; the book can be sold so much cheaper because there is no local trade which adds the profit of the dealer to the price. What the publishers have to offer we know sufficiently from their advertisements in the papers, and from their pretty, attractive catalogues, and from the reviews and critical articles. And finally, there are the subscription agents, who certainly lack no patience in bringing their books to the prospective readers. We have therefore stationery shops, and department houses, and publishers' advertisements and selling agents, and in addition the railroad counters and the hotel-stands—what more can be desired?

All this is granted. But what is the result? Buying books has become to a high degree a matter of passing fashions, and these fashions are essentially determined by the advertisements of the publishers. Everybody buys the latest book which the fashion pushes forward, and the chances are great that it is just that kind of a book which five years later nobody will read, and which will be dead weight in the home library. No publisher can afford to give equal chance to all his publications. To bring a book, only for a few weeks, to the attention of the magazine or newspaper readers is extremely expensive; it is possible only for the books which, by the name of the author or by sensational features or by special timeliness, promise unusual sale. Any other book, too, might be brought forward by extensive advertising, but it would be ruinous; it may not be difficult to sell a one-dollar book if a two-dollar bill is laid in every copy, but the publishers do not like that method. As a result, most authors complain that their publishers do not take enough trouble with the announcement of their particular writings, and that they therefore sell in unsatisfactory figures. They may well envy the German author whose books are supplied on request to every bookstore in the country free of charge for a year's display. With us here a book that is not widely advertised, or widely criticised, does not indicate its existence to the average reader. And yet this advertising system itself makes the idea of reducing the price of books by eliminating the bookstore entirely hopeless; it is more expensive than the profit of the middleman, and serves only the few favorites.

The immediate consequences of this whole situation is the rapid disappearance of the books after their noisy appearance for a few months. . . . A book which does not win favor in the first weeks seldom has a second chance. But that is a waste of intellectual labor which no nation can afford. Europeans are often surprised to find how wasteful the American household of moderate means is. . . . The literary kitchen of the nation is much more wasteful, without being rich enough to be able to afford such luxury. To live ever from new books means in this case simply underfeeding.

This hasty rhythm is all the more ruinous because America does not believe in new editions—one of the saddest features of American bookmaking. In Germany, for instance, a book outside of fiction is usually revised by the author when one thousand copies have been sold. It is thus kept living, in steady contact with the progress of knowledge, and in steady adjustment to criticism; thoroughness demands it. In the United States I know students' text-books sold up to more than fifty thousand copies in the last twenty years with never a word in them changed. If the book has once found favor, it goes on, by mere tradition, unchanged, however antiquated its statements may be. The European publisher in such cases would have demanded from the authors a revision at least every second year. The reason for the difference is clear. The European book is printed from type for the purpose of making new editions easy, as the type is destroyed after the printing of a limited number. The American book, on the other hand, is printed from plates, which allow an unlimited reprinting if the book is successful. If the plates are once made, it is of course much cheaper to go on with unchanged reprinting than to set up a really new edition. . . .

The well-advertised books disappear too quickly, and the books which do not justify extensive advertisement have no chance—but all this is the poor fate of books which have had at least the good fortune to appear. Can there be any doubt that this whole situation works from the outset against the appearance of many other books? Not every book has the desire to be a best seller, not every book is written for large crowds, and yet if it had a chance to reach the inquiring booklovers in every home, and to remain for their perusal in the bookstores, it might slowly find a little audience, and might thus in the long run pay the publisher. But the American publisher knows that there is no long run for the book which is not expensively advertised, or which does not appeal to large circles. He cannot risk, therefore, manufacturing the plates, and the elaborate manuscript remains unprinted. The lack of good bookstores, which are just adapted for selling the slow-moving books, thus inhibits the literary production of the whole country. The young or unknown author is pushed into the newspapers and magazines, while his thoughts perhaps demand the book for adequate expression; or he is forced to keep his product unpublished if his work is unsuited to the popular channels.

Scholarship and academic activity suffer immensely from this unwillingness of the publishers to risk the publication of a modest book; and they are justified in their fears, as, under the American system, publication would indeed mean a loss to them. . . .

At the same time the bookbuyers become disorganized too. They no longer have that delightful opportunity to spend half an hour once or twice a week in a well-supplied bookstore, and to enjoy the old friends and the new acquaintances before they are brought home for the family hearth. The reader without a bookstore becomes uncritical; with him to work upon, the silliest book can be brought up to a large edition by clever advertisements, and a smart subscription agent can lead him into any trap. . . .

What can be done to bring the haphazard and hysterical methods of book-buying to desirable conditions, from which publishers, authors, and readers may profit alike? Nothing more ought to be necessary than a fundamental reform of the bookstores. We must have in every town large, beautiful, well-supplied bookstores, conducted with some literary instinct. The German method of bringing this about is not applicable in the United States, as here it would be construed as unlawful restraint of trade. The German law allows restrictions which American suspicion of monopolies would not tolerate.

In Germany all publishers form one association, no member of which has a right to sell directly to the customer; every copy, therefore, goes through the bookseller. Yet that alone, if adopted here, would not secure any great advantage, for it would be very doubtful whether a small town could have its well-equipped bookstore, as the large stores in the big cities would evidently be able to give a high discount, and would thus secure the whole trade by mail-orders. The bookshop in the small place would then be lost. The really decisive point is, therefore, that no member of the publishers' association should have a right to give books to a bookstore that sells below the regular retail price. The customer in a little country town in Germany can thus get his book from Berlin or Leipzig only at the same price at which the store in the neighboring street supplies it, and his neighbor can give him the further advantage of a convenient display. He trades, therefore, in his own town; and in this way even the smallest place can provide business for a solid bookstore which is a centre of literary interest.

Such an agreement, which stimulates the book-loving instinct through every county of the Fatherland, involves indeed a restraint of trade, and the Supreme Court of the United States has decided against it. The bookstore which breaks the price agreement with one publisher, and undersells its neighbor, cannot by any associative agreement lose the right to get books from other publishers; yet just on that hinges the German success. But there are other ways to secure similar results, and one especially which would be the true American way: a combination without monopoly. . . .

It is by all means the best way. In the department stores literature will never take a dignified place, and the little bookstores, or rather half-bookstores and quarter-bookstores, which prevail to-day cannot ever be the germs for the desired development, because there is no capital behind them. Bookstores which are really to serve the ideal interests of American culture must be attractive, large halls with a rich assortment, and a display with comfort for the reader, and that means an outlay of large capital—which, indeed, will earn more than in the dingy shops of to-day. Places like the six or eight best and finest bookstores in New York, Boston and Philadelphia ought to be, several hundred in number, spread over the whole land. Their function would be not less important than that of the public library. And all this is possible at once if the publishers themselves would unite their energies, and together create bookstores in which all products of their publishing houses should be on continuous display. . . .

Something of this kind must be done, or the bookstores will and must dwindle away entirely, and with them the habit of reading a good personally owned book by the home fireplace—the habit of reading with continued attention, instead of rushing spasmodically through the little cut-off pieces of the illustrated pamphlets. . . .

[The foregoing article has been submitted to two well-known American publishers. They agree with Professor Münsterberg in deprecating the present conditions of the book-trade, but they do not share his faith in a possible reorganization along the lines suggested. The American Publishers' Association, which has been held by the Supreme Court to be a combination in restraint of trade, was formed in order to prevent the small booksellers from being driven out of business by the department stores. Since the unexpected legal obstacle to the work of the Association has arisen, the problem of the small bookshop remains precisely what it was. For the publishers themselves to enter the field of retail bookselling, as Professor Münsterberg suggests, would not only require a vast increase in their capital, but would inevitably, in the opinion of the two publishers consulted, result in the further demoralization of the local booksellers, whom the publishers now desire to protect and encourage in every possible manner. Perhaps there is some other way out of the difficulty.—THE EDITORS OF The Atlantic Monthly.]

ANNUAL MEETING OF BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE fourteenth annual meeting of The Booksellers' League will be held at the rooms of the Aldine Association on the evening of St. Patrick's Day—March 17. The principal business of the evening will be the reading of the reports of the secretary and treasurer; the election of a president for the ensuing fiscal year and trustees to take the places of those whose term of office expires this month. All members who wish to partake of the dinner must notify Charles A. Burkhardt on or before March 15.

LORING, SHORT & HARMON IN THEIR NEW BUILDING.

THE firm of Loring, Short & Harmon was established in 1868 in a small store under the Falmouth Hotel, in Portland, Me., with just five people on the payroll—the three members of the firm, a bookkeeper and an office boy. The business began to grow almost from the start, and after being at that location for years it had increased to such an extent that it was found necessary to obtain larger quarters, and the Lancaster building in Monument Square was erected for them. It was finished the latter part of the year 1881 and they moved into it in June, 1882. There they remained, occupying most of the building, while their business steadily increased until they were burned out last June, when they were obliged to seek other quarters and their business was then scattered in various parts of the city. But the firm of Loring, Short & Harmon was doing business all the time, for the aim of the concern from the beginning of its business career has been to get the business of the State of Maine that would otherwise pass through to Boston and New York. That they have been successful in doing so is very evident, for the name of this firm is known not only to every person in Portland, but throughout New England and other States as well.

Starting in business in a modest way, they now employ nearly 100 hands and occupy a space about three times as large as before the fire, the floor capacity of their new building being about 100,000 square feet, with a large two-story storehouse in the rear.

The new building is six stories high, two stories higher than the old building, and is fitted throughout with the Grinnell automatic sprinkling system. Every part of the building is well lighted and ventilated throughout, while the front show windows of plate glass allow the best possible display of the many choice lines of goods carried by this concern.

The first floor is a very striking example of the manner in which the entire building is finished and equipped, each for its special lines. All the woodwork on the street floor is finished in mahogany, with eighteen silent salesmen showcases of plate glass with mahogany trimmings, while around the lower walls are handsome wall cases with sliding doors. On each side of this floor a pretty balcony runs nearly the entire length of the store, easily accessible by a neat stairway with brass rails. All the bright finish on the main floor is of satin finish brass. This floor is devoted to the display of books, leather goods, stationery, cut glass desk fittings, sporting goods, etc. One side of the main floor is devoted exclusively to the display of books of all kinds.

The stairway on the main floor is located at the rear of the store. It is broad and easy of ascent with a landing half-way. It runs to the second floor, which is also finished in mahogany like the first floor, and which, by the way, is one of the show places of the store. The office occupies about half the space at the rear on this floor. It is fitted with the latest office devices, and with a richness that makes it very attractive to visitors. The centre salesroom on this floor is devoted to the display of office supplies and fine druggists' sundries. The main and most attractive feature on this floor is the wall paper room.

The third floor of about 13,000 square feet is devoted entirely to wall papers, with one room set aside for the special display of fine hand-made and imported wall papers.

The book bindery occupies the entire fourth floor and gives one some idea of the immense business carried on in this line by this concern. This bindery is one of the most up-to-date and best equipped binderies in the country. It has specially constructed fireproof vaults to protect valuable books in while in process of binding.

The basement of the store is a very busy place, for here is done all the shipping of this busy firm. The heating plant for the entire building is also located in the basement.

A. M. ROBERTSON IN A PERMANENT HOME.

"ONE of the most significant moves that has been made by any San Francisco book house since the great fire," according to The Pacific Stationer and Bookseller, "is the one planned by A. M. Robertson, the well-known publisher. He announces that he has secured a lease on a three-story building to be known as the Robertson building, which will be located at the southeast corner of Stockton Street and Union Square Avenue, facing Union Square. The building will cover a lot 44 x 70 and will be constructed along original lines, making it one of the most striking structures in the new San Francisco and one thoroughly in keeping with the high-class business carried on by Mr. Robertson. The upper floors of the structure have already been rented to the Town and Country Club and the ground floor will be utilized by Mr. Robertson, with the exception of a small store. The building itself will be constructed of red brick with white marble facings. . . . The location may be regarded as being one of the finest in the city for the class of business transacted by A. M. Robertson. The high-class trade has always centred around Union Square, and since the fire this tendency has been much more marked. At one corner of Stockton and Geary Streets will be located the City of Paris, one of the finest drawing cards for the high-class trade in the city; on another will be the immense store of the Nathan Dohrmann Company, and on the third will be Wolf & Hawley, all high-grade stores. A few doors above Union Square is located the big piano house of Byron Mauzy and a high-class drug store is in between. All around the square are the better grade of hotels, and it will be possible to secure much of the desirable transient trade, as well as the regular run of custom.

"The career of A. M. Robertson in San Francisco has been a varied one, and whether it has been because of good fortune or business foresight, it is to be noted that he has always managed to secure the most attractive locations to be had. When he commenced business here in 1877 he secured a store at 3 Montgomery Street, in the old Masonic Temple, in a location that was then considered the heart of the retail district. Ten years later he decided to move to Post Street, and secured a store under the Bohemian Club. At this time he was informed that he had a very poor location for his kind of business and the commercial agencies noted after his name the fact that he had an undesirable location. Within a short time Post Street became the centre of the art world in San Francisco, and one of the finest retail streets for the better class of trade. He was located here at the time of the great fire and saw his store vanish into smoke on the 19th of April, 1906. Two weeks later he was doing business in a basement at 1126½ Ellis Street, and in June of that year moved to his present location at 1539 Van Ness Avenue.

"It is Mr. Robertson's intention to move to the new store on Stockton Street in time to hold a grand opening on April 19, if such a thing is possible. Work is to be commenced on the structure at once and is to be rushed through with all possible speed. Certainly nothing could be more appropriate than a celebration of the third anniversary of the great fire in such a manner.

TO PROTECT AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS OF POST CARDS.

THE POST CARD MANUFACTURERS' AND ALLIED TRADES' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION has just been organized by leading American manufacturers for the purpose of having specific provision made in the tariff act for post cards on a basis which will enable the manufacturers of the United States to compete on equal terms with the European manufacturers. At the present time post cards imported into this country are assessed duty under the classification "manufactures of paper," covered in the tariff act by sections 399 to 407.

The officers of the association are: President, Simon Bergman, of Illustrated Post Card and Novelty Company; secretary, A. G. Brewer, of Souvenir Post Card Company; treasurer, Louis J. Ullman, of Ullman Manufacturing Company; vice-presidents, John Bergman, of Illustrated Post Card and Novelty Company; F. A. Ringler, of F. A. Ringler & Co.; A. Witterman, of Albertype Company; A. M. Spear, of the Ault & Wiborg Company; Fred N. Snyder, of T. W. & C. B. Sheridan Company; Joseph I. Grady, of New York; Haywood, Strasser & Vogt, and A. G. Bruinier, of Kalle & Co.; attorneys, Francis E. Hamilton, of New York, and Henry & Robinson, of Chicago, Ill.

The association has held a number of meetings, and through its general counsel, Francis E. Hamilton, formerly solicitor to the Collector of the Port of New York, has filed a brief and an argument with the Ways and Means Committee at Washington. This petition requests that souvenir post cards receive a specific classification, and secondly, that the rates of duty be imposed upon the importation of foreign post cards so as to enable the manufacturers of the United States to compete on an equal basis with the European manufacturers.

It is pointed out that when the last tariff act was enacted, souvenir post cards were almost unknown in this country, and that not until the year 1903 did the large importation of post cards begin in this country. Mention is made of the fact that while the manufacture of post cards in European countries is an old established enterprise, in the United States the industry is only in a formative state.

A statement showing the relative difference of wages paid in this country and abroad makes up an important part of the brief, and the need of protection for the American manufacturer is strongly urged.

It is estimated that the importations of post cards into the United States run from $40,000 to $50,000 in value per day.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION will hold its annual meeting at the Hotel Victoria, New York City, on May 11 and 12. The annual dinner will be given on the evening of May 12, at the rooms of the Aldine Association unless, on account of the imminent removal of the Aldine Association, the committee will be obliged to make arrangements to give the dinner elsewhere, of which notice will be given in ample time.

The programme committee, V. M. Schenck of Springfield, Mass., chairman, is arranging for a meeting of unusual interest and is planning for the largest attendance in the history of the association. The programme is outlined as follows:

Profitable Adjuncts of the Retail Book Trade.

H. S. Hutchinson, New Bedford.

Percentage to Sales. L. H. Cary, business manager of the Pilgrim Press.

The Department Store and the Book Trade.

Walter S. Lewis, manager of the book department of Strawbridge and Clothier, Philadelphia.

The Retail Book Trade—Its Possibilities. J.

L. Thompson, Charles Scribner's Sons.

The Circulating Library.

Method of Buying Books and Handling of Special Orders.

A New Method of Retailing Books. W. R. Brown, proprietor of Brown's Bookstore and The Dial, Chicago.

EXHIBITION OF MODERN GERMAN BOOKS.

CONTEMPORANEOUSLY with the exhibition of modern German art at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and of modern Spanish art in the rooms of the Hispanic Museum in New York City, there has been an exhibition of the work of the modern German book publisher at Brentano's New York store. The books shown are those produced by the Insel Verlag of Leipzig, which is celebrating this year the tenth anniversary of its birth.

The founder of the Insel Verlag, A. W.

von Heymel, who is now in New York, says that Germany is at present "enjoying a great revival in the printing and binding art, in which revival 'the Insel Verlag has endeavored to take an important part by publishing every kind of meritorious literary work in a tasteful, appropriate and beautiful manner.'" To this end Dr. Anton Keppenberg, of Lepsic, an expert collector, the well-known Hugo von Hoffmannsthal, author of "Electra," and Harry Graf von Kessler, the German critic, are closely allied with the Insel Verlag.

In type, paper and binding this publishing house is endeavoring to renew the traditions of some of the best of the early German publishers, and especially the recent English bookbinding and printing art as represented by the Kelmscott, Essex and Dove Presses. Latin instead of German characters and the Gothic in decoration prevail in the Insel Verlag books. Some sixty or seventy titles, most of them from the classics, are included in the exhibition of these books at Brentano's.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY FOR PRESSMEN.

THE union men have won in the long-fought case of the Typothetæ of America against the International Printing Pressmen's Union. A decision rendered on March 2 by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati establishes an eight-hour day for work.

The Appellate Court rules that no contract exists between the union and the Typothetæ to maintain the nine-hour day as alleged by the Typothetæ. It declined to enter into a consideration of the injunction features of the case but sustained Judge Thompson on all other matters. Judge Thompson's rulings, therefore, on the injunction features of the case stand. He held that no injunction should lie to restrain the officers of the union from advising the union men to keep or break a contract because they were parties to or interested in the contract.

A case similar to the one decided on March 2 is pending in the Supreme Court of the United States. The Typothetæ attacked the Union on the ground that the officers of it were contract breakers. The Union officers fought against the validity of what the Typothetæ alleged to be a renewal of nine-hour contracts entered into by other officers of the Union.

The fight of the printing pressmen for the eight-hour day began in 1905.

POE VOLUME BRINGS $1,200.

SPIRITED bidding marked the sale of a first edition of Poe's "Al Aaraaf" in the collection of books belonging to Chief Justice James T. Mitchell and the estate of H. Rush-Korvey in Samuel T. Freeman & Co.'s auction rooms in Philadelphia on March 2. The volume was finally sold for $1,200 on an order of Dodd, Mead & Co. of New York. This was an unusually high price for this book, the highest price ever having been paid for a circulation volume before being $700. A presentation copy of the same work sold in New York last week for $3,900.

The book contains "Al Aaraaf," "Tamerlane," and a number of minor poems, and was published in Baltimore in 1829 by Hatch & Dunning. It is still in its original binding.

COMMUNICATIONS.

PUBLISHERS COMPETING WITH RETAIL BOOKSELLERS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Way back in December of last year THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY printed an interesting letter from Mr. R. E. Sherwood that I was in hopes would call forth more of the same sort. Perhaps at that time business was too brisk with most booksellers to read and write on the subject. Will not Mr. Sherwood and others write more on that important and vital subject of retailing by publishers so that we retailers may have some data from which we can make some move to remedy existing conditions? I am aware this is no new subject. I am aware that some things have already been done to remedy the general price-cutting evil. There is, however, room for improvement, and only by "speaking out in meeting" can we diagnose the trouble and perhaps work out a cure.

There are publishers and publishers. Just about the time Mr. Sherwood's letter appeared the writer received a communication from a publisher saying a certain party had sent them an inquiry about some of their publications. The publisher wrote that he had sent this party a full list of his publications and had instructed him to call on the local booksellers and put in his order if he found what was wanted. The result was I made a good sale. That was protection.

As a contrast, I wrote another publishing firm for a quotation on a certain set of books which one of my customers wanted in cloth. I had bought of them in the fall the same work in leather binding, and had it on my shelf. I was sure of the price, but thought it best to write so that the publisher would know I was working up a sale, and also to get any lower quotation should there happen to be any change. I quoted the lowest price consistent with proper methods—as low as any bookseller, not a price-cutter, would sell it. After a few weeks, not having heard from my customer, I asked him one day if he had given up buying the set. "Oh no," he replied, "I sent to the publisher for it and have it now in my house." He certainly would not have done this had not the price been much lower, for my price was carriage paid.

These same publishers, I am told, said to a party asking about prices, that they would sell books at what price they pleased, or give them away, if they choose, the bookseller to the contrary notwithstanding. I do not infer from this that they would break their word on protected books.

Question: Which publisher will the writer be inclined to favor in purchasing or carrying stock?

To illustrate what protection is in other lines, I will relate the following, which occurred some time ago.

A wealthy gentleman was about to build a house. Fearing the local men would overcharge him he took his architect down to New York and made all his hardware selections there. A few weeks later a local hardware dealer received a letter from a leading house with an enclosed credit bill stating that the gentleman from his town had made his selections from their wholesale stock, and they had credited the local dealer with the difference between the wholesale price and the price they had charged their customer. That again was protection. When librarian or local committees go to New York, how many times is this done? If not, why not? In all other lines in my store I have no trouble with the wholesale houses. I am always protected to every reasonable extent. Why not in my book department? Why not by all as well as by a few publishers?

In these days of "a square deal" are certain publishers considered exempt, and if so why?

JOHN STERLING.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., February 27, 1909.

PROTECTION WANTED ON "PICK-UP" AND MAIL ORDERS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I want to thank you for the editorial in your issue of February 20, entitled "A Question of Discount," as well as your editorial of January 16, entitled "Shall the Retail Bookseller Survive?"

You are quite right in saying that there is evident a new rapprochement between publishers and booksellers, and much credit is due THE PUBLISHERS WEEKLY for its part in bringing about the better situation already evidenced in the announcements of several of our leading publishers. It has been made plain to all concerned that the retailing of books, both by bookstores proper and by department stores, requires a margin of at least $33\frac{1}{3}$ per cent, and any reform that does not take this fact into account will make little headway in the solution of the problem. This percentage as a minimum, should extend, however, not only to special bills, but to "pick-up" or mail orders as well, for while it is true that there is a little more trouble on the publishers' part in handling such orders, it all works out for the publishers' benefit, and mail and "pick-up" orders should be encouraged by him as a means of working off his less popular and oftentimes forgotten books.

With the enormous output of between 6,000 and 7,000 titles each year there are not a half a dozen houses in the United States who can make a pretence of stocking anything other than the more popular books. Even at the most liberal discount now allowed no book that is called for less than twice a year is profitable to carry in stock, and with the situation as it is regarding the capital of the ordinary bookseller, who can afford to carry a stock of the slow-selling books of other days? Yet this class of books makes up fully 50 per cent. of every publisher's list—books that he himself has ceased to exploit or advertise. How is this stock to be disposed of at a profit? Largely through the so-called old-fashioned bookselling or book-hunting methods. The true bookseller who looks upon his business somewhat as a profession, and is willing and eager to run down any book, whether it is published at 25 cents or $25, is the one who brings these books to the people. If real bookselling were a mere problem of buying so many popular novels to meet a certain demand, there would be some sense in the proposition that stock orders should be billed at a lower price than mail orders. But real bookselling is not that at all; it is giving the book buyer the best and most exacting service, and often for a mere pretense so far as compensation is concerned, and truly so on all the books at all difficult to locate.

Publishers state that their profit is made on the older books. The time required to look up catalogues of books, work that can only be done by expert salesmen, write out orders, mail letters and oftentimes pay postage, would indicate that this is the very class of books on which booksellers lose the most. It is to the financial advantage of every dealer to keep a stock of sellable books for economy's sake in doing business, and all wideawake booksellers are willing to meet the publisher on reasonable grounds. It is not to the advantage of the publisher, however, to discourage "book-hunting" by baiting the trap so "niggardly" as to discourage effort. When we hear that it is only the new books that sell, and that the old-time bookseller is no more, do we need to seek any further explanation than the fact that there is no reward for the bookseller particularly diligent in supplying real knowledge of books that are not among the best sellers or in reprint editions? Schedules and discounts seem heretofore to have been made up principally to help a salesman get a big initial order. The effort is to induce the bookseller to stock up big on a few popular titles. This may be good merchandizing; but is not the true interest of the publisher better served by having as agents competent booksellers eager to search out and supply any book on their list is when a customer wants it? When a book is wanted, unless the customer can get satisfactory information, he passes on to the library or goes without; in either case a sale is lost. The true interest of bookseller and publisher alike is in holding the customer and getting the order. What encouragement is there to do so on say a $1.50 net book at 25 per cent. discount? Ordinary cost of doing business, say 26 to 27 per cent, plus additional effort and time of expert clerk.

Cost of book.....	$1.12
Cost of doing business.....	.38
Usual postage on book.....	.14

$1.64

Received from customer..... 1.50

Net loss..... $.14

It is bad enough at one-third. Why punish the eager bookseller by putting an extra tax on aggressiveness in getting the hard order, even though theoretically it seems to cost the publisher a modicum more to handle the order. Would it be better for all booksellers to go to a merchandise basis at once, and sell only what they have in stock?

BOOKSELLER.

POSTAGE ON POST CARDS TO EUROPE.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Might I suggest that you call the attention of members of the booktrade in America to the fact that the postal authorities will not allow the use of ordinary postal cards for the reporting of books to be franked with a one-cent stamp. If the ordinary postal card is used it must carry two cents postage. You will see by the enclosed that I have to pay double fee, and this frequently happens.

A card similar to the enclosed may be used for book reporting to be franked with one-cent stamp, but it must have nothing else shown on card but particulars of the book or books.

WARNING AGAINST CHEAP ADVERTISING SCHEMES.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: A number of publishers in New York and other cities, among them being the undersigned, have been approached on a proposition to buy advertising space in out-of-town newspapers at an extremely low rate.

If they are wise, they will look very carefully into the details of this proposition. We have learned to our sorrow that an excellent idea may have its fruitage of woe if improperly handled.

We should have been wiser, because we in our earlier days patronized the lightning rod agent.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HARRY P. MOSS, a prominent citizen of Parkersburg, Va., proprietor of the H. P. Moss Bookstore, died suddenly while at his desk in the store on January 11. Mr. Moss was born on December 31, 1860, and had been in business in Parkersburg for some thirty years.

ABRAHAM ENGLISH BROWN, author of "Beneath Old Roof Trees," "Beside Old Hearthstones," "John Hancock—his Book," "Faneuil Hall and Market," "Glimpses of Old New England Life," "Bedford Old Families," "Flag of the Minute Men," and several historical works, died on February 25, at Bedford, Mass, where he was born January 21, 1849.

JOHN B. SEIZ, of the firm of Seiz Brothers, dealers in church supplies and publishers of religious works at No. 5 Barclay Street, New York City, died February 24, at his home in New York City. Mr. Seiz, who was born in Bavaria in 1861, came to this country when he was ten years old. He later became associated with Frederick Pusted & Co., with whom he was connected for twenty-five years. In 1906 he went into partnership with his brother, Edmund G. Seiz, and formed the firm of Seiz Brothers, which will now be continued by his brother.

THE REV. DR. WILLIAM WILBERFORCE RAND, one of the editors of the American Tract Society, died at his home in Yonkers, N. Y., on March 3. Dr. Rand was born in Gorham, Me., in 1816, and was educated in the Boston Latin School and at Bowdoin College, from which he was graduated in 1837. After preparation in the Bangor Theological Seminary, in 1841, he was ordained a minister in the Dutch Reformed Church. Since 1848 he had been engaged in an editorial capacity by the American Tract Society. All the books, tracts and periodicals issued by the society since 1862 had been edited by him. He was the author of a "Bible Dictionary" and many other religious works. He was made secretary emeritus of the Tract Society in 1903.

THE REV. DR. THEODORE LEDYARD CUYLER, clergyman and author, who had been identified with the religious life of Brooklyn, N. Y., for almost half a century, died on February 26 aged eighty-seven. Dr. Cuyler was born in Aurora, N. Y., January 10, 1822, and at the age of nineteen was graduated from Princeton. After a visit to England he entered Princeton Theological Seminary and in 1846 was licensed to preach. He supplied pulpits in Kingston, Pa., Burlington, Vt., Trenton, N. J., and in New York City. In 1860 he became pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Church in Brooklyn, with which he was associated until 1890, since which time he was engaged in reform work of various kinds. Among his books, besides his widely known autobiography, are: "Mountain Tops with Jesus," "How to Be a Pastor," "Christianity in the Home," "God's Light on Dark Clouds" and "Heart Life."

JOHN BOYD THACHER, twice Mayor of Albany, N. Y., author and collector, died in Albany on February 25, after a long illness.

Mr. Thacher was born at Ballston Springs, N. Y., September 11, 1847. After graduation from Williams in 1869 Mr. Thacher entered his father's car wheel works, and later became a partner in the firm. In 1883 he was elected to the State Senate and at once became very active in public life, remaining so until near his death. Mr. Thacher was the author of a number of works of an historical character, including "The Continent of America: Its Discovery and Its Baptism," "Little Speeches," "The Cabotian Discovery," "Christopher Columbus: his Life, his Works, his Remains" and "Outlines of the French Revolution." He was a well known bibliophile and had a famous collection of autographs and manuscripts. The collection of autographs contains over 25,000 and is said to be one of the largest in the world.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

LAURA STEDMAN is preparing "The Life and Letters" of her grandfather, E. C. Stedman, and would be pleased for the loan of any of his letters now in the possession of his friends. Miss Stedman's address is 206 W. 106th Street, New York City.

PROFESSOR CHRISTIAN HUELSEN, author of "The Roman Forum: Its History and Its Monuments," now in its second edition, is at present in this country and will give lectures at various universities and colleges, beginning at Columbia University.

MR. DE MORGAN writes Mr. Holt that he is still busily at work on the manuscript of his new novel, which has been announced as "Blind Jim," though he himself does not care for this title, and will probably change it to "It Never Can Happen Again." Mr. De Morgan says it will be longer than "Joseph Vance" or "Somehow Good," and a competent critic who has seen the ms. says it will be his best novel.

MANY off guesses as to the authorship of the play "An Englishman's Home" were made before it was known that Major Guy du Maurier had written the play which is causing such a stir in England. The success which Major du Maurier has won with his pen recalls the somewhat dramatic début of his artist-father as an author. George du Maurier was well advanced in years before he delighted the world with "Peter Ibbetson" and "Trilby." The new soldier-author is young, but he has seen a great deal of foreign service and has won by his work in the Boer war his D.S.O., coveted by English officers. Major du Maurier is the eldest son of George du Maurier and brother of the actor, Gerald du Maurier.

DR. SILAS WEIR MITCHELL, of Philadelphia, celebrated his seventy-ninth birthday on February 15. In spite of his advanced age, Dr. Mitchell is healthy and vigorous and still finds time for literary work, some professional practice and social intercourse. His literary work, which began almost fifty years ago with stories for children and gradually branched out into scientific treatises and novels, has won for him probably a greater following of readers than any other modern American writer. He became famous with the publication of "Hugh Wynne." A later book, the "Adventures of François," was dramatized by his son, Langdon Mitchell, as was also his poem, "The Masque," which, under the name of "The Miser," was played by Wilson Barrett. His latest novel, "The Red City," a story of Philadelphia in the second Administration of Washington, made its appearance within the last twelvemonth. It is in a sense a sequel to "Hugh Wynne," who appears incidentally in the narrative.

OLIVE LOGAN, once well known as an author, who was rescued from penury in New York several years ago by Lady Cook (Tennessee Claflin), is now an inmate of a pauper lunatic asylum at Bansted. She was removed from a Kensington boarding house a month ago on complaint of the landlady to the authorities that she was suffering from delusions and that she was a nuisance. The authorities communicated with her sister in Boston and brother in Cincinnati but got no response. Olive Logan was born in Elmira, N. Y., in 1839. When very young she married Henry A. De Lille, a writer. She divorced him and married William Wirt Sikes, a member of the American Consular Service who died in London in 1883. While doing literary work in London she employed an office boy, James O'Neill, who became her secretary and later her husband. He took her name. In 1906 she had him arrested in New York City for non-support, and the arrest revealed the fact that she was in severe poverty. Lady Cook rescued her from a Seventh Avenue tenement and established her in the San Remo Apartment House in Central Park West. Later Mrs. Logan returned to London. Olive Logan wrote "Surf," a comedy, which Augustin Daly produced with great success in the early '70s, and she also dramatized Wilkie Collins's novel, "Armadale," and made a metrical translation of François Coppée's "Le Passant." She also has written several books and was at one time a prolific contributor to newspapers and periodicals, particularly in the department of dramatic criticism.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

America, the new Catholic weekly, will make its appearance about Easter under the auspices of the Jesuits. The headquarters of the new journal are at 32 Washington Square, West, New York City.

SOROLLA, whose works are being shown at the Hispanic Society, New York City, is the subject of the leading article of the International Studio for March. The article which is written by Christian Brinton is illustrated with a monotyp reproduction of the painting of the artist's daughters, Helen and Maria, on horseback in Valencian costumes of the time of the Napoleonic war of 1808, and a monotyp reproduction of the spirited painting, "Beaching the Boat." Among the other reproductions of Sorolla's works are a series of his characteristic beach scenes and a portrait of Senora Sorolla.

BUSINESS NOTES.

HONOLULU, H. I.—Brown & Lyon Company, importers of fine books at the corner of Alakea and Merchant Streets, have succeeded to E. Herrick Brown & Company and William T. Lyon Company.

MARIETTA, O.—J. E. Van Devoorst has sold the Colonial Bookstore, which will be run by his successors under the name The Colonial Bookstore, Incorporated.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y.—The Hanford & Horton Company, of this city, has been incorporated to carry on the business of booksellers, etc., with a capital of $20,000. The directors are E. T. Hanford, DeWitt S. Horton and J. A. Smith. The change has been made for the convenience of administration and does not change the ownership, management, enterprise, enthusiasm or ideals which have characterized the business for many years. The company succeeds Hanford & Horton, which succeeded firms appearing in the following order after the business was established by Alex. Wilson in 1846: A. B. Deming, L. S. Cutler, Morgan & Sloat, Morgan & Roosa, S. R. Morgan & Co., Morgan & Hanford.

NEW YORK CITY.—Donald W. Newton has succeeded to the business of Newton & Cartwright.

NEW YORK CITY.—John Hovendon, 156 Fifth Avenue, will be pleased to receive catalogues of new and second-hand theological books.

NEW YORK CITY.—Sturgis & Walton have set up as publishers at 31 East Twenty-seventh Street. Lyman B. Sturgis, the senior member of the firm, was for some years vice-president of The Macmillan Company, and Lawton L. Walton was for a time secretary and, for upwards of twelve years, at the head of the manufacturing department of the same firm.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—George R. Nell has withdrawn from the firm of Campion & Company, booksellers, at 1305 Walnut Street. The remaining partners, Edwin B. Campion and James P. Horn will continue the business under the old firm name at the same location.

PITTSFIELD, ILL.—A new book and stationery store has opened in the Hyde building. The proprietor is Frank Frazier.

PORTLAND, ME.—Loring, Short & Harmon held the opening of their new store on Tuesday, February 23.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The Liberty Book Store has just opened for business at 1237 Golden Gate Avenue.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Paul Elder & Co. have secured a ten-years' lease on the five-story building at the corner of Grant Avenue and Tillman Alley, directly across the street from the White House. The firm will occupy the ground floor, one loft and the basement, and will sublet the three remaining floors.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The Philadelphia Book Company, which has opened a store at 1279 Golden Gate Avenue, has no connection whatever with the Philadelphia Book Company, dealers in engineering and technical books, 17 South Ninth Street, Philadelphia.

TYLER, TEX.—The storage loft of the Bryan bookstore was damaged by fire on February 20. The stock was valued at $7000. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE WISCONSIN LIBRARY COMMISSION, Madison, Wis., has just published the annual cumulation of the "Current Events Index—a Guide to Material in the Daily Press" for 1908. (46 p. 8°.)

THE H. W. WILSON COMPANY, Minneapolis, have just ready the fifth edition of their "Directory of Booksellers, Newsdealers and Stationers in the United States and Canada." Appended is a list of the principal book publishers of the United States. According to the prefatory note about 1000 names have been added to the former list. (8°, cl.)

"THE English Catalogue of Books published in 1908"—the seventy-second volume of this well-known book of reference—has just been published by Sampson Low, Marston & Co., Ltd., and will be distributed in this country within a week, by the OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. The volume contains 313 octavo pages, and, besides the usual bibliographic information, gives the names of over 1000 publishers and others that issued books in 1908.

It will be some time before the catalogue of the Acton collection of books at Cambridge is published. Meanwhile, as the London Athenæum says, "historical students will be glad to know that bulletins, containing the titles of books which were not previously in the University Library, are being issued in various sections, and can be purchased from the secretary, University Library, Cambridge. 'Germany: General Political History,' and 'Spain and Portugal' are now ready; and 'Political and Social Philosophy, Law,' will be available shortly."

THE BIBLIOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY OF AMERICA has just published its second volume of "Proceedings and Papers," 1907-1908. Besides reports of the proceedings, lists of officers and members, etc., the volume contains a "Report on the Check List of Incunabula Owned in America;" a "Report of Committee on Colonial Laws;" a "Report of the Committee on the Bulletin of the Society;" contributions on "The First Presses of South Carolina," by A. S. Salley, Jr.; "Eighteenth Century Presses in Tennessee," by Edwin Wiley; "History and Progress of Collecting Material for a Bibliography of Connecticut," by G. S. Godard; "A Handbook of Special Collections in American Libraries;" "The International Catalogue of Scientific Literature," by Cyrus Adler and Leonard C. Gunnell; "Indexing of Periodical Literature and the Work of the Concilium Bibliographicum Zurich," by A. L. Voge; also, "The Contributions of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to the Bibliography of Science," by W. H. Beal, editor, and E. Lucy Ogden, librarians of the Office of Experiment Station. Index. (158 p. 8°, pap. Edition 300 copies.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will bring out on March 12 "The Glory of the Conquered," the story of a great love, by Susan Glaspell. The setting of the story is twentieth century Chicago, the lovers of a prominent scientist and his artist wife.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have just ready the sixth volume of "The Interpreter's Commentary on the First and Second Corinthians and Galatians," by Prof. John E. McFadyen, of Knox College, Toronto, who with Dr. Lyman Abbott is the editor of the whole work.

THOMAS WHITTAKER, INC., has just brought out a brochure by Professor Briggs, of the Union Theological Seminary, New York, on the subject of "The Virgin Birth of Our Lord." The essay is introduced by Dean Robbins, of the Episcopal General Theological Seminary of New York.

THE JOHN MCBRIDE COMPANY will publish on April 16 "The Gipsy Count," a romance of chivalry, by May Wynne, author of "Henry of Navarre," etc., with a colored drawing by E. Fuhr. On the 30th of April they will bring out a novel of love and laughter by Alexander Otis, entitled "Hearts Are Trumps," with a cover and frontispiece by R. H. Boehm.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY has in preparation the following novels: "The House Between the Trees," by Mr. J. Russell Lane, which begins with a motor car accident and ends in an unforeseen way; also, "Old Ninety-Nine's Cave," by Miss Elizabeth H. Gray, who triumphantly declares that a remedy for leprosy has been discovered and is in the hands of the medical profession.

CUPPLES & LEON will publish on March 20 "The Motor Boys in Strange Waters, or, Lost in a Floating Forest," a new book for boys by Clarence Young in The Motor Boys Series; "Dorothy Dale's Great Secret," by Margaret Penrose, a new volume for girls in the popular Dorothy Dale Series; also, "The Pansy Wedding," a new book for the little folks, by Sara Tawney Lefferts in The One Family Series.

ISAAC MENDOZA, 17 Ann Street, New York City, has bought the library of the late Franklin Burdge, author of biographies of John Brougham the actor, Simon Boerum, John Harding and Henry Wisner, members of the Continental Congress, etc., consisting of upwards of 17,000 volumes, comprising Americana, genealogy, works by Cruikshank, Rowlandson and others, extra illustrated books, etc. The collection is now on exhibition at Mendoza's book shop.

HENRY ALTEMUS COMPANY, Philadelphia, have just ready a work by George Roe, a deep student of Oriental literature, entitled "Iblis in Paradise, a Story of the Temptation," which tells the stories of the creation of the world, the creation of Adam, the appearance of Eve, of Israfel the fallen angel, the limbed serpent, the Temptation and the Fall. The Persian versions are just enough similar to those of Genesis to prove a common origin; but their Oriental richness and imagery make them seem like familiar gems in new and strange settings.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just issued three "travel" books of very timely interest. These are "A British Officer in the Balkans," probably the latest word on that unsettled section of Eastern Europe, by Major Percy Henderson, late of the Indian Army; "Behind the Veil in Persia and Turkish Arabia," by M. E. Hume-Griffith; and "Among the Wild Tribes of the Afghan Frontiers," by Dr. Pennell. Two new books of scientific character were added to the Lippincott list recently—"Alloys and Their Industrial Application," by Edward F. Law, and "Suction Gas Plants," by C. Alfred Smith.

HILLS & HAFELY COMPANY have this year a half dozen or more new cards for St. Patrick's day. Among these are embossed cards showing an Irish flag flying from a gilt flag-staff; a very dainty card with a delicate spray of shamrock; a card in colors and gilt showing the Kinsale lighthouse; a card showing a sprig of shamrock, each leaf tipped with tinsel simulating a drop of water, and several other cards showing shamrocks, harps and other designs. Nearly all these cards are reinforced with tints filled in by hand, some of the designs being all done by hand. They are all high-class and refined.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. announce a volume entitled "Cooking for Two," by Miss Janet M. Hill, which is intended to show the young housekeeper how to make pretty dishes and how to plan nourishing and savory food on a very small scale, and by way of enabling her to test her knowledge, a series of questions on essential points follows each chapter. Anne Warner's new book, "In a Mysterious Way," will bring her back to her old field after her excursion into psychology, and introduce the reader anew to that inexhaustibly interesting person, an American country postmistress, shopkeeper and substitute for the daily paper, the town crier and the poster artist.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. will bring out shortly a book entitled "With Gun and Guide," in which Thomas Martindale gives a narrative of his hunting experiences in Maine; also, a popular handbook for family use, entitled "What the Doctor Says," an attempt on the part of a reputable practitioner to describe clearly and simply such minor diseases and common ailments as may lend themselves to home treatment. The remedies suggested are mostly such simple ones as may be found in the average family medicine closet, or are of such a nature as can be readily applied. The book will be useful in all households, but especially in those which are remote from immediate access to the physician.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish shortly a book of Irish-American life and humor by Maurice Francis Egan, entitled "The Wiles of Sexton Maginnis," which is replete with delineation of Celtic character as found in this country, and is not without its vein of satire running through its humorous descriptions. It is said that the book owes its existence largely to President Roosevelt's keen interest in and enjoyment of the earlier chapters. Another novel to be brought out shortly is by Louise Forsslund, and is called "Old Lady Number 31." The story is described as a mixture of humor and pathos, in which an old husband and wife come to face a divided path—the Old Folk's Home for one, the poor-house for the other.

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY announce for early publication Leonid Andreyev's story, entitled "The Seven Who Were Hanged," translated from the Russian by Herman Bernstein, author of "Contrite Hearts," etc. "The Seven Who Were Hanged" created a literary and political sensation immediately upon its publication in Russia, in 1908. It was translated into several languages, and in Germany it is at present attracting much attention both for its powerful theme and its artistic worth. Andreyev has been called "The Russian Poe," "The successor of Tolstoy," and, strange as it may seem to Americans who hardly know his name, "the most interesting and most remarkable writer of the world to-day."

THE BALL PUBLISHING COMPANY have in preparation a volume entitled "Camping and Camp Cooking," by Frank A. Bates. Mr. Bates has spent the greater part of his life in the open air, and his book shows the tyro in woodcraft how to make himself comfortable in camp, and gives him the recipes for a hundred dishes which may be prepared over a camp fire. They also announce a novel entitled "The Hand of God," by Cora Bennett Stephenson, a story of intense interest, the events of which are interwoven with the history of Samson and Delilah, and in which are traced the connection between the ancient Hebrew rites and those of Phallic and Sun Worship; also, "Vest-Pocket Limericks," a handy volume designed as a make-joy and kill-care.

THE TANDY-THOMAS COMPANY, 38 East Twenty-first Street, New York City, will publish this month "The Garden of Girls," by Marion A. Hilton, with illustrations, a story of interest especially to older girls and younger women, by a new author. They will publish in April a volume entitled "The Statesmanship of Andrew Jackson Shown in his Writings and Speeches," collected and edited by Francis Newton Thorpe, LL.D. This is the only collection which has ever been published of the writings and speeches of Andrew Jackson. While not claiming to be complete, it will contain practically all he wrote on the principles of statescraft for which he stood, notably Nullification, the United States Bank and the Public Domain.

JOHN LANE COMPANY publish this week "A Daughter of France," by Constance Elizabeth Maud, which interprets French character to American readers, showing especially the dash and sunny grace of the French women; "The Book of Living Poets," by Walter Jerrold, the object of which is not only to indicate something of the number of living poets, but also to show them in their most characteristic work, and, as a consequence, in a certain measure to illustrate at once the range of the poetical expression of the time, and something of the thought of the time as rendered in poetry; also, an illustrated edition of poems by the late Laurence Hope, under the title "Songs from the Garden of Kama," illustrated from photographs by Mrs. Eardley Wilmot, showing the natural surroundings proper to the setting and background of India which furnished the poet her inspiration.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have just ready a novel by E. Nesbit, "The House With No Address." The story starts with an account of the various escapades of the heroine while in a French boarding school, afterward taking up the thread of her adventures in the artist's colony. They have also just brought out "Puck of Pook's Hill," and "The Birthday Book," issued in the Pocket Edition of Rudyard Kipling's works; "The A B C of Taxation," by C. B. Fillebrown, a follower of the teachings of Henry George, and President of the Massachusetts Single Tax League, whose present book is the result of a study and discussion of the subject of taxation, covering a period of twelve years; also, "Letters of a Japanese Schoolboy," a book of humor written under the pen name of "Hashimura Togo," by Wallace Irwin and illustrated by Rolin G. Kirby.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. seem to have surpassed even their own high standard in their provision of cards and novelties for the fast approaching Easter season. The simple elegance of design and coloring is specially noticeable. The cards in the shape of crosses and church missals are most chastely beautiful. The old English lettering and the vines and leaves and flowers are all printed in the highest perfection of the art of color printing. And for the Pagans and outsiders who also rejoice in the old Easter festival there are hundreds of devices in which rabbits and chickens play the leading parts. Fluffy yellow chickens in Easter bonnets carrying parasols; rabbits with moving eyes sitting on nests full of eggs of brilliant colors; orchestras of rabbits singing Easter anthems; opening Easter eggs from which crawl both rabbits and chickens; and many pretty verses and oddities shaped as rabbits or chickens or eggs or baskets—all are fascinating, all will be among the "best sellers." The Easter booklets are printed on papers of exquisite tints and tied or bound with every device of decoration.

BRENTANO's will publish next week Gaston Leroux's new story of mystery, entitled "The Perfume of the Lady in Black," which is said to be even better than the author's "The Mystery of the Yellow Room," the characters of which reappear in the pages of the new book. The hero is again Joseph Rouletabille, the young reporter whose powers of reasoning bring to light the most remarkable mystery known to the annals of modern fiction. "The Perfume of the Lady in Black" begins where most romances end—with a wedding. The couple start on their wedding tour with the brightest anticipations for the future, but long before they reach the end of their journey their happiness is merged in a dark cloud of horror, which is not lifted until the last pages of the book are reached, and then in a manner which startles the reader as much as it does the members of the little company assembled in the Square Tower to witness Rouletabille's "corporeal demonstration of the possibility of the body too many." M. Leroux knows as well as any author now living—perhaps even better than the inventor of "Sherlock Holmes" how to create a thrill and to awaken the eager and excited interest of his readers.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready "Parcimony in Nutrition," by Sir James Crichton-Browne, M.D., a decidedly interesting little volume, in which the author, who is an eminent British medical authority, very cleverly and keenly attacks the theories of Horace Fletcher and of Professor Chittenden of Yale, and formulates some good, common-sense ideas as to what and how much the normal human being should eat. This is a timely and important topic, and a contribution to dietetic literature by so high an authority as Dr. Crichton-Browne is worthy of attention. They will publish in April a volume of "Selected Speeches of William Jennings Bryan." These speeches have been chosen by Mr. Bryan himself, and the volume containing them will carry a biographical introduction written by Mary Baird Bryan, Mr. Bryan's wife. In the preparation of The World's Famous Orations, of which he is editor-in-chief, Mr. Bryan insisted that no speech of his should be included. This omission has emphasized the appeals which have been made to Mr. Bryan for copies of his speeches, and it is in response to these appeals that the forthcoming volume will be issued.

DUFFIELD & Co. have just ready "Syrinx," a novel by Lawrence North, a new writer. His present story, which is humorous and pathetic by turns, is a character study which concerns an old scholar who is in love with a young and capricious girl. They will publish this spring Martha Dickinson Bianchi's new novel, "The Cuckoo's Nest." It is a story of French life, with which Mrs. Bianchi is familiar. Mrs. Bianchi comes of an old and well known New England family. For many years her father was treasurer of Amherst College. The old Dickinson home at Amherst, where Mrs. Bianchi has done much of her literary work, has been occupied by the Dickinson family for several generations. Miss Emily Dickinson, the poet, was an aunt of Mrs. Bianchi. Mrs. Bianchi's first novel, "A Modern Prometheus," was one of the notable books published last year. This month they will make the experiment of issuing a new book in paper covers, after the French manner. The volume, a collection of picturesque stories of Paris, by Helen Mackay (Mrs. Archibald K. Mackay), will copy precisely the French scheme of bookmaking in type and make-up, and the binding will be of paper in place of the customary boards and cloth.

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY will publish at once a handbook for the use of "Church Clerks," compiled by the Rev. Dr. Zelotes Grennell. It is designed to teach clerks how to keep church records, and being concise and comprehensive should be a boon to the particular class needing such assistance. They have also nearly ready "The Sunday-School Teachers' School," by the Revs. H. T. Musselman and H. E. Tralle, the fourth in the series known as The National Teacher Training Institute Course, which takes up the organization and departments in the schools, the officers and their duties, and so forth. A little later in the month they will bring out "A Restatement of Baptist Principles," by the Rev. Philip L. Jones, editor of the Baptist Publication Society. As the title indicates, it is a concise summary of the principles of the denomination, and is designed for readers to whom the larger works covering the same ground are inaccessible or unattractive. Mr. Jones will set forth the cardinal principles of the Baptist faith in a form suitable for class use or for general circulation. The second volume of the Church History Handbook Series, by Dr. Henry C. Vedder, will be ready March 15, and will deal with "The Period of the Reformation."

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish on the 10th inst. "The Bronze Bell," by Louis Joseph Vance, author of "The Brass Bowl," etc., which is described as "an American story of mystery, romance and adventure." The "mystery" takes its cue from a girl's unintentional violation of a traffic regulation while driving her automobile through a Chicago street. From this beginning is woven a series of adventures, with a plentiful dash of romance, which lasts to the end of the book. Mr. Vance's novel is also a story of adventure, starting with a peaceful shooting of ducks on Long Island and taking the hero half around the world. They will bring out on March 20 "The Royal End," which, though it bears the name of Henry Harland, the author of "The Cardinal's Snuff Box," etc., is in fact the joint work of Mr. Harland and his wife, who wrote the concluding chapters of the book. The first part of the novel is laid in Venice and the Val' d'Arno. From thence its scenes are shifted to a colonial mansion in New England. They will bring out at the same time "The Music Master," based on the play of the same name, by Charles Klein; "Towards the Light," by Princess Karadjia; also, "Culture by Self-Help," by Robert Waters. "Kingsmead," the Baroness von Hutten's new novel, will not be ready until April.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY has brought out this week "A Second Year of Sunday School Lessons," by Florence Palmer King, (formerly Florence U. King;) "Beginners' Botany," by L. H. Bailey; and Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast," in the Macmillan's Pocket Classics Series. Next week they will publish Robert W. Neeser's "Statistical and Chronological History of the United States Navy." This monumental work covers the entire history of our navy. Mr. Neeser has had access to the records of the Navy Department, and in addition has searched all the extant records, manuscripts and printed, in Europe as well as in this country. As a result of this patient, thorough research, Mr. Neeser has been able to record practically every ascertainable fact dealing with the navy. A valuable feature is a bibliography of several thousand titles. They will publish later a work on "Robert Y. Hayne and His Times," by Theodore D. Jervy, who has gone to original sources and to the files of contemporary newspapers for the bulk of his material, out of which he has made a strong case for the great South Carolinian, who drew from Daniel Webster the speech on union which ranks as one of the greatest masterpieces of American eloquence; "The Story of the Great Lakes," by Professor Edward Channing, of Harvard University, and Marion F. Lansing, editor of the Open Road Library, which is not so much an elaborate history as a series of vivid pictures of life on the fresh-water seas during the three centuries which have elapsed since Champlain first paddled out upon Lake Huron. In April they will publish a new novel by Frank Danby. The appearance of another story by the author of "The Heart of a Child" and "Pigs in Clover" will be welcomed by the army of readers won by the previous books.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have just ready a new novel by Cyrus Townsend Brady, entitled "The Ring and the Man," the hero of which is a man who turns from business to politics, in a typical American city, and in his fight for the cause of reform is involved a love story, the development of which creates the dramatic interest of the romance. The book is illustrated by George Gibbs. They have also just issued "Nature's Help to Happiness," by Dr. John Warren Achorn, whose work is "a plea for the cultivation in middle life of a taste for the enjoyments of the earth and the wilderness, not only for relaxation and pleasure but as a desirable, even a necessary, recourse from work, and especially as a haven of happiness and health in later life." "Nervousness: a Brief and Popular Review of the Moral Treatment of Disordered Nerves," by Dr. Alfred T. Schofield, an English physician of standing, who takes the ground in the present book that "a disease due to the imagination is not necessarily an imaginary disease;" also, a volume of "School Sermons," by the Rev. Dr. Henry Augustus Coit, was for nearly fifty years the rector of St. Paul's School, Concord, having started the school in 1856, published under the editorship of his son, Rev. C. W. Coit. They will publish at once Dr. William Bradley Otis's "American Verse, 1625-1807," which treats early American verse in a philosophical and interpretive manner.

It considers everything from the "Nova Anglia" to "The Columbiad," which is worthy of note because of its connection with American history or because of the light which it throws upon the social and intellectual characteristics of the times. It is based upon a careful investigation of the original editions in all the older American libraries, and much of its material has never before been mentioned in any history or bibliography of American verse. It is in no sense an anthology, and all unimportant material has been rigidly excluded. There is appended an exhaustive bibliography and a careful index.

STURGIS & WALTON COMPANY, a new firm of publishers that have just established themselves at 31-33 East Twenty-seventh Street, New York City, announce for early Spring publication a revised and enlarged edition of a work by James J. Williamson, on "Mosby's Rangers," a record of the operations of the Forty-third Battalion Virginia Cavalry known as "Mosby's Rangers." The book, when it first appeared, met with a favorable reception. They also announce an attractive edition of "The Lost Tales of Miletus," by Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton, which has been out of print for many years and is almost unknown to the present generation of readers; a new edition of Charles Waterton's fascinating book of travel, "Wanderings in South America," with a memoir of the author by Dr. Norman Moore, an introduction and 16 full-page illustrations by Charles Livingston Bull, who made a trip to Guiana in the Spring of 1908, going over exactly the same ground as traversed by Waterton; also, a reprint, in two volumes, with illustrations and map, of the second edition of Benjamin F. Thompson's "History of Long Island," a valuable work that has been practically unobtainable for many years. Besides these works they have also in preparation three interesting series—The Swan Dramatists, a selected series of the great plays in English literature, such as Christopher Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus," John Webster's "Duchess of Malfi," Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," and others equally important, which will contain sufficient critical matter to make them of interest to the general reader and also suitable for class use; The Deepwater Series, popular tales of the sea, including classics like "Two Years Before the Mast," by Richard Henry Dana, Jr.; "The Red Rover," by J. Fenimore Cooper; "The Wreck of the Grosvenor," by W. Clark Russell, and others; also, Familiar Friends Series, a collection of good books for boys and girls, to include "Cousin Phillis," by Mrs. Gaskell; "Milly and Olly," by Mrs. Humphry Ward; "The Heroes," by Charles Kingsley; "Gypsy Breynton," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, and others. The senior member of the new firm is Lyman B. Sturgis, who was vice-president of the Macmillan Company for a number of years, and Lawton L. Walton, who was secretary of the Macmillan Company and head of the manufacturing department for upwards of sixteen years, so that the firm may be said to be well equipped both from the business and the technical sides.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE NEW GREAT FRENCH DETECTIVE STORY

By the author of "The Mystery of the Yellow Room"

THE PERFUME OF THE LADY IN BLACK

By GASTON LEROUX

Ten Illustrations and Two Ground Plans. 12mo. Cloth. $1.50

"The Perfume of the Lady in Black" is even better than "The Mystery of the Yellow Room." The characters of "The Yellow Room" reappear in the pages of "The Lady in Black," and the hero is again Joseph Rouletabille, the marvellous young newspaper man, who reveals the "CORPOREAL DEMONSTRATION OF THE BODY TOO MANY."

The Delafield Affair

By FLORENCE FINCH KELLY

Author of "With Hoops of Steel"

"THE DELAFIELD AFFAIR" is not only a western story but a story of live people whose characters are strongly drawn and whose loves and hates make a universal appeal. Here is a story that will take high rank among western fiction.

"I tell you I swore vengeance on that man. I promised myself I'd hunt him down if it took a lifetime. I'm on his trail now and I'm not going to leave it until I run him into his hole. Then I'm going to stand him up and call him to his face all he deserves; and give him a gun, so he can have a fair chance for his worthless life, and take one myself; and then I'll put a bullet through his scoundrel brain if I have to hang for it afterwards!"

The day after making this threat to his friend Bancroft—and being overheard by the banker's daughter, Lucy—Curtis Conrad went up to Albuquerque on a fresh clue to the whereabouts of the financial shark on whom he sought revenge for his father's ruin. A shrewd politician asked five hundred for the information Conrad sought.

"'You will be surprised,' said Jenkins, 'when you hear the man's name. . . . For Sumner L. Delafield, the fugitive from justice, the absconding defaulter, the man who sank the fortunes of hundreds of people, the man who had to hide in Canada and slink around in out-of-the-way places for so many years is now known as—there was a slight pause to give his revelation its fullest dramatic effect—is now known in New Mexico as Alexander Bancroft, president of the bank on which your check is drawn.' For a moment Conrad was stunned. His first definite emotion was the desire to choke the man who had said this thing about his best friend."

Such is the situation when this story opens. From this exciting beginning to the dramatic climax of the tale there is not a dull page nor an uninteresting character.
